

21. Conservation in Peru

Recognizing the potential importance of the vicuna as a provider of wool and as a tourist attraction the 9th General Assembly of IUCN meeting in Lucerne in June 1966 congratulates the Peruvian Government on the measures already taken to conserve the vicuna and study its ecology and urges it to take similar measures for other important species of the Peruvian fauna, especially in suitable forest areas.

